

The Wild Bunch

The loss of a spouse can leave an emotional wound that seems never to heal. With the passing of his wife Joyce, Wayne Marsh found himself in this unhappy plight. But in God's good time, Wayne also found The Wild Bunch. That is the unlikely name of a group of widows and widowers who meet each week for lunch, mutual support, and to learn how to smile again. Yes, and even to laugh. It was at one of these cheerful meals that a waiter chuckled, "Goodness, you're a wild bunch!" And the name stuck. Wayne has gone on to meet the Lord, but this group is still helping other recently bereaved people to become part of this healing fellowship.
